Production and transmission of Early Slavonic texts in vernacular and sacral languages

William R. Veder has taught Slavic linguistics and text studies at Utrecht, Nijmegen and Amsterdam, with stints at Harvard, Novosibirsk, Sofia and Leuven. His focus has been on the early transmission of texts written in Old Slavonic, in Glagolitic as well as Cyrillic script, including the Apophthegmata Patrum. He is currently guest professor at the University of Gothenburg and contributor to the Monastica digital platform at Lund University.

Monday, November 14 at 17.15 in room LUX:C214 | Refreshments afterwards